Carbohydrates, which are sugars, are an essential part of a healthy diet. They provide the main source of energy for the body, and they also function to flavor and sweeten foods. Carbohydrates range from simple sugars like glucose to complex sugars such as amylose and amylopectin. Nutritionists estimate that carbohydrates should make up about one-fourth to one-fifth of a person's diet. This translates to about 75-100 grams of carbohydrates per day. A diet that is deficient in carbohydrates can have an adverse effect on a person's health. When the body lacks a sufficient amount of carbohydrates it must then use its protein supplies for energy, a process called gluconeogenesis. This, however, results in a lack of necessary protein, and further health difficulties may occur. A lack of carbohydrates can also lead to ketosis, a build-up of ketones in the body that causes fatigue, lethargy, and bad breath.

- ① nutritionists suggest carbohydrates should make up about a quarter of a person's daily diet.
② Over intake of carbohydrates usually cause gluconeogenesis, a lack of necessary protein.
③ Some carbohydrates are simple sugars called glucose, which function to flavor and sweeten foods.
④ In the state of ketosis, the body will feel weak and lethargic due to the lack of carbohydrates.

Anyone who has ever achieved any degree of success knows that _____. Success is borne on the shoulders of commitment, discipline, and persistence. Yet our popular culture conveys a very different message to children: success doesn't have to be difficult or time consuming. Popular culture is full of stories about overnight successes, pills to lose weight fast, and "breakthrough" products to look ten years younger. Children see young actors such as Hilary Duff and Haley Joel Osment and musical geniuses like the violinist Sarah Chang, but they don't see the many years of determination, practice, and sacrifice that got them to the top of their professions. Children don't realize that overnight successes are usually ten years in the making.

- ① one person can make a big difference
- ② nothing in life worth having comes easily
- ③ people have to accept their children as they are
- ④ there's always another way to get something done

Generally, during a complex negotiation, Westerners divide the large tasks up into smaller ones. One can move through the smaller tasks, finishing one and moving on to the next, sensing accomplishment along the way. Issues are resolved at each step in the process, and the final agreement is the sum of the sequence. _____ (A) _____, in Eastern thinking, all issues are discussed, often with no apparent order, and compromises, when made, occur at the conclusion of negotiations. The Western approach is sequential and the Eastern is holistic — the two worlds are apart. _____ (B) _____, American negotiators have difficulty measuring progress during negotiations with the Japanese, and the differences in the thinking and decision-making processes can result in misunderstandings.

(A) (B)

- ① In other words Nevertheless
- ② However Instead
- ③ However Therefore
- ④ In other words As a result

As we explore together the virtual world that floats on the edge of this material life, the many imaginative territories you inhabit bring back another reality. I catch images of my own childhood wanderings through Narnia, the land of hobbits, and Mowgli's jungle. All these are deep pleasures which combine all my senses and momentarily transport me into another dimension of living. If I were to bring it all together I would say that among all the misery, fear, injustice, and pain, I hope you will not forget moments when all this fades away into periods of innocent joy. It is when we bring all our powerful senses together, perhaps in a moment in the garden of earthly delights that we triumph over despair. So the moment when you dance to Handel or when you sit in a pool of wild flowers, or gravely take part in your first tea ceremony, these are the moments you will treasure. They are, with similar moments with friends and loved ones, what makes being human bearable.

* hobbit: Tolkien 작품에 나오는 등장인물

- ① Negative Aspects of Innocent Joy
- ② Unpleasant Places Visited in Childhood
- ③ Gaining Strength from Pleasurable Memories
- ④ Overlooking Injustices in a Fantasy World

To make plans for the future, the brain must have an ability to take certain elements of prior experiences and reconfigure them in a way that does not copy any actual past experience or present reality exactly. To accomplish that, the organism must go beyond the mere ability to form internal representations, the models of the world outside. It must acquire the ability to _____. We can argue that tool-making, one of the fundamental distinguishing features of primate cognition, depends on this ability, since a tool does not exist in a ready-made form in the natural environment and has to be imagined in order to be made. The neural machinery for creating and holding 'images of the future' was a necessary prerequisite for tool-making, and thus for launching human civilization.

- ① visualize the present reality as it is
- ② manipulate and transform these models
- ③ identify and reproduce past experiences faithfully
- ④ mirror accurate images of the world outside
